Given in marriage by her father, the bride appeared in a princess style gown of bombazine silk that was fashioned with a portrait neckline and short sleeves of Alencon lace accented with pearls and iridescents. The full skirt ended in a chapel train. She carried a bouquet of Glamellia surrounded by spaethphyllums with ivy foliage. Her veil of illusion with pearl accents descended from a crown of pearls.

The honor attendant wore a ballerina-length gown of taffeta styled with a square neckline and a bouffant skirt. She wore a matching taffeta headband and carried a crescent bouquet with apple-blossoms.

The Waldorf-Astoria
Park Ave. and 50th St.
New York, N. Y.

Dear Sir,

I would like to make a reservation for two persons for the night of Saturday, June 24, 1961. Since I am making the Waldorf-Astoria the first stop of my honeymoon trip, I am interested in a pleasant, single room with double bed. Although my budget will not allow something really luxurious, a room that is a little more special than usual would be nice.

My bride and I plan to arrive at approximately 8:30 Saturday evening and to depart before noon Sunday. We also plan to have our Saturday evening dinner and Sunday breakfast at the Waldorf.

I would appreciate confirmation of this reservation in the near future and am willing to forward a deposit if you desire.

Thanking you for your kindness and hoping to hear from you soon, I remain,

Sincerely yours,

TUNDRA TRAIL

TUNDRA is the flower-rich meadowland which grows above the limit of trees. It is a word like "forest", "grassland", or "desert". Alpine tundra, seen here, is found on mountains above tree line; arctic tundra occurs beyond the limit of trees in the far north or south.

This trail through the alpine tundra, beginning at the Rock Cut parking area, is approximately one-half mile long. A round trip over this highest nature trail in the world takes about 40 minutes, for a slow pace is adivsable at this high elevation (12,110'). Signs along the trail interpret features of the tundra.

TUNDRA IS FRAGILE and may be permanently damaged by being walked on repeatedly. This damage is especially severe, when one considers that it takes many of these plants several hundred years to achieve the growth that you see here. Research shows that five-year-old tundra plants may be only ¼ inch in diameter! Therefore, you are asked to stay on the path and leave the plants and rocks for others to enjoy. The Park motto is "Take only a picture; leave only a footprint."

New Mayor Named By Councilmen

Sinking Spring, March 5 — R. Lewis Wenrich, 110 Spring Crest Blvd., this borough, was named mayor of the borough by the Sinking Spring Borough Council last night after Earl R. Fox resigned.

Fox, whose term would have expired at the end of this year, left the post to become police chief in Fleetwood.

Wenrich resigned as a member of council to accept the mayor's post. He had been appointed to council in May 1962 to fill the unexpired term of Paul H. Groff, who moved from the borough. The new mayor also served as councilman from 1946 to 1953.

Vacancy Filled

Hugh M. Quigley of 94 Mull Ave. was appointed to replace Wenrich on council. Both Wenrich and Quigley were installed into their new posts with the oath being administered by Kenneth S. Harting, justice of the peace.

Councilman Paul P. Merkel Jr. introduced a resolution commending Fox for his untiring efforts as mayor, his careful supervision of the police department, his contribution to the golden anniversary celebration and his sincere interest for the residents and general welfare of the community.

In other business, Kenneth G. Hain, property committee chairman, was authorized to purchase shelving, tables and chairs to furnish the proposed reference library. The equipment will be purchased from Moyers Stationary at their bid of $833.95.

Hain was also authorized to increase insurance coverage on the library furnishings and the new addition at the borough garage.

Engineer Asked to Prepare Street Construction Costs

Sinking Spring, March 19 — Borough Council at its meeting last night authorized Richard I. Brady, borough engineer, to work out specifications and cost estimates for new construction of certain streets not affected by the construction of sanitary sewers. Brady was also instructed to complete a plan on Ashely Road to meet existing grades established and recorded in Milbeth Village.

Paul P. Merkel Jr., chairman of the water committee, informed council that fire hydrant locations on Ashely Road will be established as water mains are installed.

Kenneth G. Hain, chairman of the library committee, reported the Sinking Spring Lions Club inspected the renovations and improvements to the proposed library and assured the committee of a budget of $25,000 towards the purchase of books. Hain said "It is the hope of the committee that other civic organizations will contribute to the library fund."

Installation of shelving at the library and delivery of tables and chairs is expected early next month.

Council discussed at length the general dissatisfaction with street repairing and sidewalk reconstruction being done by contractors for the sewer project. Communications were directed to the General Authority engineers, Gilbert Associates, and contractors, informing them of council's intent to make certain all specifications are complied with.

Hugh Quigley, recently appointed councilman, announced the law committee met with the borough police and auxiliary police and R. Lewis Wenrich, mayor. They asked for the department's full cooperation. Wenrich in his new position asked for council's cooperation and said his department will strive for the best public relations possible.

Borough Officials Named in Suit

Protests Refusal Of Driveway Permit

Mandaums proceedings were filed in the Berks County Court by Edward H. Harpel against the borough officials of Sinking Spring to obtain a permit for the construction of a driveway for Crest Walk from Spring Crest Boulevard.

R. Lewis Wenrich, mayor; Kenneth Hain, Peter Merkel Jr., Irvin Bortz, Elmer Longenecker, Hugh Quigley, Luther Batzel and Richard Miller, councilmen, and Charles Fahrnebach, building inspector, are the defendants.

Harpel states he owns the property on the north side of Penn avenue in the borough in the Spring Crest area. The borough opened and graded Spring Crest Boulevard including the area known as Crest Walk which is 20 feet wide.

Harpel says he applied for a permit to construct a driveway entrance from Spring Crest Boulevard to Crest Walk which was refused. He says there is no zoning ordinance prohibiting a driveway.

He claims that without a driveway the value of his property would be deprived of increased value since without a driveway the land is unsuitable for residential development. Attys. David Sharman Jr. and Baskin & Mendelsohn represent the plaintiff.

MISS REYNOLDS IS WED TODAY

Becomes Bride of Hugh Quigley of Bellefonte, in St. James Episcopal Church.

A pretty wedding was solemnized this afternon in St. James' Episcopal church, at 4:30 o'clock, when Miss Elinora Reynolds, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel H. Reynolds, of this city, became the bride of Hugh Quigley, son of Judge Henry C. Quigley, and Mrs. Quigley of Bellefonte. It was a brilliant event.

The impressive ceremony of the Episcopal church was performed by Rev. Dr. C. G. Twombly rector of the church. The wedding marches were played by George Rodgers, organist. During the ceremony the choir of the church sang softly.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She was attended by Miss Henrietta Quigley, of Bellefonte, as maid of honor; Mrs. W. Fred Reynolds Jr., of Bellefonte, as matron of honor; the Misses Charlotte Appel, Susan Appel, Nellie Appel, Kitty Lutz, Jane and Margaret Hopkins, as bridesmaids.

W. Fred Reynolds Jr. attended the bridegroom. The ushers were Samuel H. Reynolds Jr., brother of the bride; Philip D. Reynolds, Charles M. Scott and Ellis Keller, Bellefonte; Stewart Coryell, Williamsport Jack W. Codding, Jr., Bethlehem and James Q Horne, Lock Haven.

The bride's gown was a handsome one of white satin brocaded in silver, with a chiffon overdress. It was made in tiers, each ruffle edged with pearls. It was trimmed with old lace which is an heirloom of the family. Her veil was also an heirloom. She also wore an old lace collar belonging to her ancestors. She carried an arm bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley.

The maid and matron of honor were gowned in tangerine chiffon. The bridesmaids wore gowns of blue in three shades. The effect of the entire color scheme of the bridal party was unusually lovely. Their flowers were Delphinium and small orange colored roses.

Mrs. Samuel H. Reynolds, mother of the bride, was charmingly gowned in pale green and silver lace. She wore a large black hat and corsage of roses.

MRS. G. R. KESSINGER

In Bellefonte:

Teachers Ending 42-Year Careers

Mrs. Ethel C. Hoffman and Mrs. Genevieve R. Kessinger, Bellefonte school teachers whose careers have paralleled each other since their high school days, have made one more move together.

They have retired from their teaching positions after serving for 42 years each.

Serving a total of 84 years together is significant enough, but other factors have a tendency to make their careers somewhat incredible.

They attended high school together, were graduated from college at the same time, began teaching in the same community on the same day and retired at the same time.

The former Genevieve Ricker of Salona and Ethel Crider of Dunnstown first met when they attended Lock Haven High School from which they were graduated in 1921.

They went to Central State Normal, now Lock Haven State College, together and were graduated in 1923. That fall, they began teaching in Bellefonte and both were assigned to the two teachers taught well over 3,000 pupils. The numbers in their classes was seldom below 35 and during some years went over 50.

What happens to someone who teaches for 42 years?

They learn a great deal. They learn just about everything there is to know about children and much more that they probably should not know about their families.

The two women laugh when they think of how parents would react if they knew some of the things they learned about them from their children. Children in the age groups they taught have few secrets, they learned.

Mrs. Hoffman's husband is Walter L. Hoffman, who recently retired as manager of the Bellefonte Weis Market. Mr. Kessinger is Faxon Kessinger, owner of Kessinger's Auto Supply.

The women say they will go on being wives and housekeepers and part of the community as they were during their teaching careers. Both plan to do some traveling.

Mrs. Samuel H. Reynolds, mother of the bride, was charmingly gowned in pale green and silver lace. She wore a large black hat and corsage of roses.

A reception attended by three hundred guests was held in the Iris Club. The decorations in church and Iris Club were in a color scheme of green and white, featuring quantities of large white peonies.

After an extended wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Quigley will reside in Bellefonte. Among the out-of-town guests were Mrs. Waterman and Mrs. C. Eugene Montgomery, of Providence; aunts of the bride; Judge and Mrs. Henry C. Quigley, Bellefonte, parents of the bridegroom; Mr. and Mrs. W. Fred Reynolds and Mrs. W. Fred Reynolds Jr., Bellefonte, Edwin Quigley, Lock Haven Misses Mary and Helen Quigley, Lock Haven, John Griffin, Lock Haven, Miss Margaret Coryell, Williamsport.

They went to Central State Normal, now Lock Haven State College, together and were graduated in 1923. That fall, they began teaching in Bellefonte and both were assigned to the Bishop Street School.

Mrs. Hoffman taught at Bishop Street for two years, spent 34 years in the former Dale Building and was at Spring Street for six years. She never taught anything but first grade.

Mrs. Kessinger replaced Miss Alice Dorworth at Bishop Street and was later transferred to the former high school on N. Allegheny St. She taught there when the building was burned in 1939 and, after the fire, went back to Bishop Street. From there she went to the new building which replaced the one destroyed by fire and then finally to Spring Street.

Mrs. Kessinger taught fourth through ninth grades but spent more of her time in the elementary field. She was teaching fourth grade when she retired.

Both teachers received degrees beyond their work at Lock Haven. Mrs. Hoffman took graduate work at Columbia University, Penn State and at Lock Haven. Mrs. Kessinger received a B.S. degree at the University and was certified to teach elementary grades and geography and mathematics in secondary schools.

It is conservative to say the over 50.

Mrs. Kessinger and Mrs. Hoffman say the most important thing they learned was to appreciate how important it is to teach and guide children through their early years. Asked what they valued most in their pupils they both agreed:

"It is wonderful to have boys and girls who get along well with their studies and behave themselves, but best of all is to have pupils with a loving heart."

He was always sports-minded. In his younger years, he was a fine baseball pitcher on the town team organized by him and his brother-in-law, Calvin R. Armstrong.

He was one of the citizens who played a leading role in the support of Lock Haven High School football in the 20's when Lock Haven had state championship teams and played Englewood High School of Chicago .

Mr. Quigley was interested in field sports and the Quigleys had a hunting lodge at Cross Fork for many years and also a deer hunting cabin now near Haneyville.

Mr. Quigley's business interests included the Lock Haven Automobile Co., which was organized as one of the first automobile dealers in the area. Mr. Quigley was one of the early automobile owners in this locality and his enthusiasm for the new mode of transportation was a factor in the early movement here for improved streets and highways.

The Quigleys resided at 221 W. Church St. until they built their home at Orchard Hill, a name widely known through the Orchard Hill kennels maintained by Mrs. Quigley for the breeding of Pekingese. Magistrates Decline Commissions

Of the 61 aldermen or justices of the peace certified by the Berks County Board of Elections from the November general election, five have not accepted commissions, it was reported this morning by Prothonotary Paul A. Adams.

This therefore creates a vacancy in those respective municipalities, he said, which can be filled by appointments.

Not accepting commissions were the following justices of the peace:

Ray Y. Wagner, Mohrsville, Centre Township; Richard R. Herbst, Shoemakersville R.D. 1; Geraldine M. Leibelsperger, 5020 Leesport Ave., Temple; Lowell Kelly, Douglassville R.D. 1, Union Township, and Charles C. Napier, Boyertown R.D. 1.

Aldermen elected and accepting commissions include George W. Ward, 31 S. 10th St. of the Third Ward; Joseph Miuccio, 228 S. 3rd St., of the Fifth Ward, and Barbara A. Clark, 1528 Mulberry St., of the 17th Ward.

Commissions for both the aldermen and justices of the peace will be available during Christmas week, it was reported by Adams. The prothonotary added that in order to qualify to lift their commissions they must first file a bond in the amount of $1,000 for justices of the peace and $2,000 for aldermen.

Accept Commissions

Justices of the peace accepting commissions were:

Dale A. Hoshauer, Reading R.D. 4, Alsace Township; Paul D. Kolesar, Douglassville, Amity Township; Joseph M. Nichols, 119 Main St., Bally; George A. Reeser, Reading R.D. 2 and Donald H. Latshaw, Leesport R.D. 1, both of Bern Township; Burton S. Berger, Hamburg R.D. 1, Upper Bern Township.

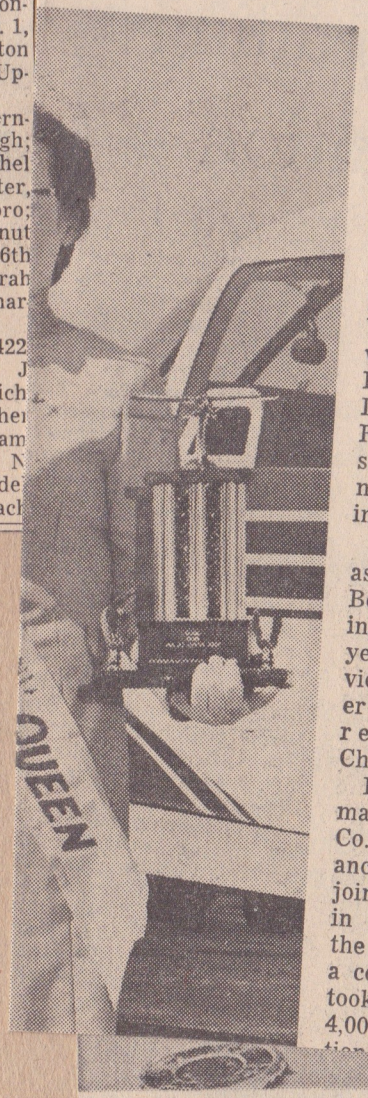
Local Woman Installed As State Regent of DAR



A BERKS County woman, Mrs. Frederick A. P. Ziesmer of 26 Upland Road, Wyomissing Hills, over the weekend was installed as Pennsylvania regent of the Daughters of the American Revolution at the closing session of the 77th Continental Congress of the DAR in Washington, D.C.

Mrs. Ziesmer, who is an associate member of the Berks County Chapter, having moved here about five years ago, is a former state vice president and treasurer and at one time was regent of the Tohickon Chapter of Quakertown.

Her husband, a district manager of the S. S. Fretz Co., a Philadelphia appliance distributing firm, joined a Reading delegation in seeing her elevated to the state post on Friday in a colorful ceremony which took place before about 4,000 persons in Constituofficers, including Mrs. Erwin Frees Seimes of Delaware, new president general. They came up to the stage escorted by pages dressed in long white gowns as organ music played in the background.

On hand for the impressive rites were Edna M. Handwerk, regent of the Berl County Chapter, and her sister, Dr. Cora Handwerk of Birdsboro, who were the chapter's official delegates. With them were these members of the chapter's house committee: Mrs. James T. Hay, Mrs. Charles Spangler, Mrs. William G. Brosman and Sara V. Swoyer.

Mrs. Hay, of 1209 Meade St., a widow and retired school teacher, who was 94 years old on March 23, was honored at the state luncheon of the Pennsylvania tended every session of the Continental Congress since then.

A former regent of the Berks Chapter who is now vice chairman of the card index committee, Mrs. Hay presented to the state body for its archives the certificate she received when she became a member 70 years ago. She is the oldest active member in Pennsylvania.

The certificate was signed before the turn of the century by Mrs. Adlai Stevenson, mother of the late presidential candidate and UN ambassador, who was president general of the DAR at that time. Mrs. Hay was given a standing ovation.

Coming to Washington to attend the luncheon were Mrs. Henry Hufford and Mrs. Clarence Mast both of Wyomissing. Another feature of the Congress was

s Faith and Art

By PAULA M. FLIPPIN

It takes an artist to create a liturgical stained glass window. But it also takes a man of great personal faith.

Such a man is Leonids Linauts, of 29 N. Church St., Mohnton, one of the approximately 100 stained glass window artists of the United States. A lecturer, designer and craftsman, Linauts is known worldwide for his quality stained glass art.

Behind his Mohnton home is the artist's studio, where windows have come to life for churches throughout the United States. Linauts personally designs his windows and all the "creative" portions of the art are performed by him.

"I only do original work," Linauts explained during an interview in his study. "I'm an artist," he continued, "not one who copies."

Linauts mentioned that stained glass art has gone through a period when artists "copied" former works done in glass. A native of Latvia, he emphasizes that he does no copying. All his windows are original.

Glass Renaissance

"Stained glass is experiencing a new renaissance in the world," Linauts said. "The art is more than 1,000 years old," he continued, "and is almost everlasting."

Linauts mentioned that the first stained glass windows were developed in Germany and France. In connection with this, he added that the quality hand-blown glass used in the windows is gotten from France, Germany, England and Milton, W. Va.

In speaking about stained glass, Linauts noted that "colored glass makes light beautiful, and glorious." He added that the light can be either natural rays or artificial ones. Many of the modern high-rise buildings, the artist explained, limit the amount of natural light that can seep through.

"The stained blass panel," Linauts continued, "is placed in a wall opening to serve as a window." He stressed that it is not, so to speak, a window, but an art panel constructed to serve the purposes of a window.

The play of the light through the stained glass should, if created well, produce an inspirational feeling in the observer. The message, according to Linauts, is therefore of prime importance.

Meditate and Sketch

"I first meditate about what I want to say," he related. "Then I sketch and put my thoughts on paper."

Linauts stated that the type of building has some control on the message. In addition to churches, he has done stained glass art for libraries, municipal buildings, banks and colleges. All require a different type of message conveyed, he explained.

"About 95 per cent of stained glass art is done for churches," Linauts said. He added that tons of glass are required to create the windows.

A stained glass window, by definition, is a translucent mosaic held together by lead. Linauts emphasized that the lead is not merely a connecting material but should, in good stained glass art, assume a function in the design.

Linauts mentioned that the window's subject matter is the first step in his work. However, the interplay of the vast types of glass and their different textures along with the various colors combine for the end result.

"There are 3,600 different shades of glass," Linauts said.

Texture Differs

ried.

"It's a shadow over his propects," said one doctor of Enrique Serrano, 54, who yesterday received the heart of Emilio Tomasetti, 47, head of the Argentine poultry and egg union.

Despite their disappointment at Serrano's failure to regain consciousness doctors said their patient was "notably better neurologically" than immediately after the surgery.

Almost 6,000 miles to the north in Montreal, Canada, Al-heart transplant patient, who also underwent the rare surgery yesterday, was declared in a "stabilized" condition following earlier expressions of concern by surgeons who performed the four-hour operation.

Murphy, 58, a retired butcher received the heart of a pregnan mother of four in Canada's firs such transplant operation. The ville Union Church and the work of his that appears in the art gallery of Lock Haven State College.

The artist's extreme pride in his native land is evident throughout his home, where articles and customs of Latvia are used continuously. It is evident that it is the home of a "creative" person.

Linauts and his wife, the former Dainauvita Pelodons, daughter of a Latvian poet, came to this country over 18 years ago as displaced persons under the sponsorship of a Philadelphia Quaker family.

Educated in Latvia

The artist was educated at the Fine Arts Academy of Riga, Latvia, and studied portrait painting and mural painting there. Later, he spent seven years studying eccleciastical art and specializing in stained glass. Linauts added that at one time he and two other stained glass artists from Latvia were serving the entire northern European market.

When he first arrived in America, Linauts worked as an artist for a photographic firm in Philadelphia and later came to Reading to work for the J. M. Kase glass firm. In 1953 he opened his studio in Mohnton.

Tht Linauts have eight children. In addition, Mrs. Linauts' mother resides with the family.

And all because of the and Mrs. John Miller, both of Bellefonte, and Mrs. Stanley N. Roseberry of State College, the paintings are the sixth group to be hung by the Auxiliary committee since the lobby was repainted, and then refurnished, by the County Council in 1967.

"It's all for pleasure," Mrs. Quigley, chairman, said today, in displaying their hand-work contact her and it will be considered by the committee for a future exhibit.

During the past months, the hangings have varied from oil paintings and photographs to posters by elementary pupils on the Children's Fair.

The work has featured local Bellefonte; four oil paintings by Kitty Roseberry of State College, and one each by Betty Miller, Ella Ishler, Bonnie Snyder and Joyce Willar, all of the Bellefonte area.

It's bright, cheery and warm in the main lobby of the Centre County Hospital these days, in spite of the many illnesses within the walls of the institution and the chilly temperatures outside.

And all because of the foresight of three County women, representing the Centre County Council of Hospital Auxiliaries.

The pleasant atmosphere, made possible just for the enjoyment of patients and guests at The Hospital, comes from colorful paintings and spring and summer flowers on the wall.

Hung by Mrs. Hugh Quigley and Mrs. John Miller, both of Bellefonte, and Mrs. Stanley N. Roseberry of State College, the paintings are the sixth group to be hung by the Auxiliary committee since the lobby was repainted, and then refurnished, by the County Council in 1967.

"It's all for pleasure," Mrs. Quigley, chairman, said today. "We find that not only visitors to The Hospital are enjoying the exhibits as they change about every six weeks, but the doctors, nurses, Hospital employes and the ambulatory patients take time to view the artistic work of County artists."

She said that plans are to use the work of each and every artist and would-be artist in the area and persons interested in displaying their hand-work contact her and it will be considered by the committee for a future exhibit.

During the past months, the hangings have varied from oil paintings and photographs to posters by elementary pupils on the Children's Fair.

The work has featured local scenes, still life, portraits, flowers, fruits and scenes of other countries.

Maybe our next one will be of animals, Mrs. Quigley said, adding that "perhaps we can also have top works by art students in the four area high schools."

The current hangings in the lobby, all of flowers, include two pastels by Ella Ishler of Bellefonte; four oil paintings by Kitty Roseberry of State College, and one each by Betty Miller, Ella Ishler, Bonnie Snyder and Joyce Willar, all of the Bellefonte area.

Other local artists have included:

Bud Curtin of Curtin; Nancy Anderson, Edna Kilpatrick Barger, Elinor McDowell, Billy Mills, Doris Gustafson, Betty Miller, Nora Quigley, all of Bellefonte; Jean Osborne, Kitty Roseberry, Ina Moyer, Ruth Lamm, L. A. Doggett, State College

Dick Brown, staff photographer for the Centre Daily Times, had an exhibit of some of his prize winning photos, after which elementary pupils displayed their posters advertising the annual Children's Fair, sponsored by the Bellefonte Hospital Auxiliary.

Another exhibit featured the work of Dr. Jane M. Strickland, Jean Smith and Doris Stanford, nurses; Pat Manley, nurses aide; and Helen Covey, Caroline Weixel and Carol Pilgram, wives of doctors.

The following pictures were all by members of the Valentine family of Bellefonte, after which the work of Stuart Frost of State College, enhanced the display wall of the institution.

During the Christmas season, Santa Claus was shown loud and clear on the wall, after which the colorful arrangements of flowers were hung.

Ann Eberman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Eberman, 855 N. Park Road, Wyomissing, received a bachelor of arts degree at the commencement of Randolph-Macon Woman's College, Lynchburg, Va. She was a history major and president of the history society.

City Man Arrested In Theft

A Reading man was arrested Thursday night in connection with a burglary at the Weis Market, Sinking Spring, where cigarettes worth several hundred dollars were stolen last weekend, police disclosed.

Vincent Santarelli, Greenwich street near 4th, posted $1,500 bail at his preliminary arraignment before Justice of the Peace Hugh M. Quigley, Sinking Spring, on charges of burglarly, larceny and receiving stolen goods, investigators said. No hearing date was set.

Borough Police Chief Jack K. Brady reported that the market, located along the Shillington-Sinking Spring road, was entered early last Saturday and the cigarettes were taken from the bulk supply sector, located at the front of the store and behind the shelves accessible to customers.

An intensive probe led to a Muhlenberg Township garage where 179 cartons of the stolen "smokes" were recovered on Tuesday, Brady went on. He said the merchandise was traced to Santarelli and the suspect surendered at Quigley's office accompanied by his attorney, Calvin Lieberman.

An inventory prepared by market personnel indicated additional cigarettes are missing, Brady reported, and the intensive probe is continuing. State police are assisting the chief. Investigators said Santarelli aids in the operation of the recently-opened In-Town Motor Lodge, 1635 Centre Ave., site of

Suspect Is Freed From Custody After Witness Declines to Testify

Judge Frederick Edenharter, at noon today in the Berks County court, granted the habeas corpus petition of Vincent Santarelli of Greenwich street near 4th, after a commonwealth witness pleaded the 5th Amendment and refused to answer questions on the witness stand.

In granting the petition, the jurist said that the defendant is discharged from custody but this does not prevent the comonwealth from pursuing its case.

Santarelli, co-operator of the In-Town Motor Lodge, 1635 Centre Ave., was bound over for grand jury action Feb. 11 by Justice of the Peace Hugh M. Quigley, Sinking Spring, on charges stemming from a Jan. 11 burglary at the Weis Market in that community. He was charged with burglary, larceny and receiving stolen goods.

The witness for the commonwealth, Anthony Vaccaro, self-employed garage operator, of 3130 Kutztown Road, refused to answer any questions asked by Asst. Dist. Atty. Michael J. Morrissey, on the grounds that the answers may incriminate him.

At that point, Atty. Clement J. Cassidy, representing the witness, advised the court that Vaccaro is presently under bail on charges in connection with the crime, and that no preliminry hearing has no preliminary hearing has Morrissey asked the witness if he knew or talked to the defendant on Jan. 11, 12, 13 and 14, and whether he knew anything about 179 cases of cigaretts in his (Vaccaro's) possession.

After Vaccaro refused to answer the questions, Morrissey rested his case for the commonwealth. Judge Edenharter then commented, "I don't feel the commonwealth has established a prima facie case."

Santarelli's defense counsel, Atty. Fred I. Noch, then asked the jurist to dismiss the charges against his client rather than just releasing him from custody. Judge Edenharter refused to do so at that time.

Noch also told the court that there was no evidence presented at the alderman's hearing to connect Santarelli with the offense.

Hearing Date Fixed

Judge Frederic Edenharter today set April 9 for a hearing on the petition of Anthony Vaccaro, who has asked the court to suppress evidence seized during a search of his garage-business place, 3130 Kutztown Road, Hyde Park.

Police charge Vaccaro with allegedly being involved in the theft of 179 cartons of cigarettes from a Sinking Spring supermarket Jan. 11, claiming they found the cigarettes in his garage.

The petitioner, represented by Atty. Clement J. Cassidy, claims he was arrested after a search of his garage and that the search was illegal because it was made without a warrant. Also, he contends the search was made in his absence and without his consent.

Vaccaro charges police used "implied coercion and trickery" on an employee during the search which he contends is a violation of his constitutional rights.

Santarelli Is 'Freed' After Writ Filing

Vincent Santarelli, Greenwich street near 4th, was freed on $1,500 bail Monday in the Berks County court by Judge Frederick Edenharter under a legal technicality.

Santarelli, co-operator of the In-Towne Motor Lodge, 1635 Centre Ave., placed himself in custody of Sheriff Harold A. Yetzer which was followed by the filing of a writ of habeas corpus by the defendant's counsel, Atty. Fred I. Noch.

That petition filed with the court stated that "your petitioner is unjustly and unlawfully held and detained in the Berks County Prison," Bern Township, since Feb. 17, "by Walter G. Scheipe, warden, who refuses to discharge him at liberty."

However, the 40-year-old Santarelli never reached the prison since Judge Edenharter ordered his release on bail before the sheriff could take the defendant to the institution. That ended his brief period of custody, but by so doing brought his case before the court ahead of the normal proceedings.
